Technology

This functional long sleeve BLIZZARD Merino top is made in the Czech Republic using the latest body mapping technology. Anatomical cut of this product adapts to the dimensions and muscle specifications of the human body while considering the differences in male and female physique.

Detailed cut and functional zones support various body functions and problematic areas so that the whole product has a perfect fit while bringing high user-comfort and great feel while worn.

All this is enhanced by using flat seams and appropriate knit structure.

High-quality Merino wool progressively enhances functionality of each garment and brings excellent thermo-insulation, odor-reducing and antibacterial properties. It helps to maintain natural and balanced skin microclimate.

Functional 3D, airing, reinforced and extra stretch zones are used for the best possible adaptation of the top, the needs of each particular muscle group and various types of build.

Softair - Due to its elastic multifilament construction, it offers smooth touch, extraordinary breathability by the principle of capillary action and the air pockets that form between its filaments provide thermal control to the garment.

Logo NoWet - Special way of knitting creates a structure that enhances natural properties of the materials. This ingenious type of knit-construction helps to conduct away any undesirable moisture fast but with emphasis on individual body parts.

Body mapping systém - provides optimal fit and helps to maintain ideal body and muscles temperature.
